Art Unit: 3744

1. Regarding claims 14, 18, 19, and 23, the phrase "inter alia" renders the claim indefinite because it is unclear whether the limitations following the phrase are part of the claimed invention. See MPEP § 2173.05(d).

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 14-17, 22, and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent No. 6,644,055 to Ohta et al. Ohta et al discloses the claimed method of automatically switching off the engine 4 upon a release of a stop mode of an air conditioner which depends on the sensed interior temperature of the passenger compartment at 20. See especially column 5, lines 455-64. Ohta et al is further considered to inherently operate the automatic switch off of the engine in response to a defined variable time period between the sensed temperature and the desired set point temperature 21. The variable time period would inherently occur as a result of the time required for the A/C system to reach the desired set point from the sensed temperature.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 25 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ohta et al in view of U.S. Patent No. 6,978,634 to Aoki. Ohta et al discloses the claimed invention except for the multiple zones. Aoki teaches a vehicle A/C system which takes into account multiple interior zones. Thus, it would be obvious to modify Ohta et al so that multiple zones are conditioned, in view of Aoki, to yield the predictable result that different passengers can receive conditioned air at different temperatures.

6. Claims 18-21, 23, and 24 are allowed.

7. Applicant's arguments filed December 19, 2008 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant's remarks regarding Ohta et al have been carefully reviewed. It is believed that Applicant is interpreting Ohta et al too narrowly. The time period referred to in step S1000 of Fig. 3 of Ohta et al is not the same variable time period recited in the claims. According to column 8, lines 11-22 of Ohta et al, the time period in step S1000 refers to an elapsed time since the signal for an engine stop request is issued from the control unit. This is not the same as the claimed time period which depends on the temperature difference between the actual temperature in the passenger compartment and the set point temperature desired by the driver.

8. Furthermore, Applicant has not explained why Ohta et al cannot inherently provide a variable time period in his A/C system in the manner described above.

9. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
